Sami Shah uncovers the strange superstitions
that guide our lives, and how we can use them to navigate the confusing world we share

"The most important new voice in Australian comedy, hands down" - The Age

"Precision timing...a masterclass in comedy" - Chortle

"Stylish, cynical, brutally newsy, biting funny" - Sunday Telegraph

"A swaggering dynamo" - New York Times

SACRIFICING THE GOAT

In Pakistan, whenever you get too paranoid about bad luck, you sacrifice a goat.
Whenever you feel grateful, you sacrifice a goat.

It sucks being a goat.

Award-winning comedian, writer, and broadcaster Sami Shah brings you a show about the strange superstitions that guide our lives, and how we can use them to navigate the confusing politics and racial discussions of today!

Sami Shah is co-host of ABC Radio Melbourne's Breakfast Show.
